

BOTTLE PLANTERS

MATERIALS

- Large plastic bottles
- Some string/ strips of fabric
- Peat free compost
- Some seeds
- Scissors (for grown ups)
- Some rocks/ broken plant pots
- A watering can

1

Remove the bottle top – you won't need it. Then cut your bottle in half (an adult should do this). You can cut a little more from the base to avoid the planter becoming too top heavy.

2

Tie your string/ fabric string around your broken pot/ rock or shell. Thread through the bottle top – so that the rock/ shell is on the inside and the fabric is dangling out.

3

Pop upside down and into the bottom half of your bottle. Your basic planter is now ready to be filled with soil and seeds.

4

Add your compost or earth – you may want to add some water to it already too. Add your seeds. Top it up with a little compost. Add a little water.

5

DONE! After about 2-4 weeks, you should have lots of little shoots. Remember, as Mother Clanger knows, gardening is all about patience!
